

Financial institutions shall maintain customer records for five years.

Customers may request access to their personal data.

The policy is effective from January 2027.

Employees must not share confidential information.

Financial institutions may be required to update records where appropriate.